LOCAL MINING REVIEW

Saturday ...

For the Week Ending July 12, 1873.

Mining matters, like everything else, appear to have partaken of the general stagnation observable in business of every kind for the week following a great National holiday and its attendant excite-tments but, though somewhat dull, we have not perceived any symptoms of have not perceived any symptoms of fine ore. Working the usual force.

pushed vigorously forward, and we hear of several new enterprises to be shortly commenced. The new hoisting works of the Raymond & Ely mine are progressing rapidly towards completion, and will be one of the finest and most extensive works of the kind on the coast. From Bristol, Highland and Hiko, we receive intelligence of a most encouraging character, and present some items of interest from those Districts in our Review to-day. We also give to-day some very interesting statements in regard to the mines of Cortez District, about two hunmunissioner of Deeds for California dred and fifty miles to the north of Pioche, and about the iron and coal mines of Washington and Kane counties, Utah.

They are beginning to make quite a respectable showing of ore on the dump. There is still some base ore in dump. There is still some base ore in the ledge, but it is rapidly changing its character to that of the characteristic milling ores peculiar to Ely District.

LA FAYETTE. This mine was located in 1869, and is situated below No. 3, about 200 feet due east from the Newark mine. A shaft has been sunk on the vein about 212 feet, showing a well-defined ledge all the way, in some places over two feet in width of good ore. A drift was run on the ledge from the bottom of the shaft, and the vein at that point looked exceedingly well. Assays having been obtained as bigh as $160 to the ton.
